MIDWEST AFRO-AMERICAN GENEALOGICAL INTEREST COALITION

SUBMIT YOUR LINEAGE CHART

Below is an example of hand-made Lineage Chart #1 with 5 generations. It quickly and at a glance captures the names/dates/places of your DIRECT ancestors' birth/marriage/death dates. The names of great great grandparents go on the far right, and have a number next to each. That numeral indicates the subsequent chart where their details will be entered, so that the tree may 'grow' and 'branch' as more details may be uncovered.

Don't worry about missing or blank entries on your chart...they are opportunities for you to see where there are gaps needing further research.

These charts also help other genealogists quickly help give you pointers on what/where you might go next in your research.

You can also see migration patterns by studying the locations of each generation's birth, marriage and places of death.

Fill-in, to the best of your ability and knowledge, your own Chart #1 and submit it to MAGIC for posterity. You can turn-in a printed chart at one of our meetings, surface mail to MAGIC's PO Box, or e-mail it to david.jackson@orderlypackrat.com.

You never know who might see it and have an idea/s for you. Or, even more excitingly, a long-lost cousin may contact you who shares a common ancestor with you. And, they may have lots of information and photos passed down their line that you may have never seen!

Getting Started in Genealogy
(From the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center)

Start with what you already know, write it down, and work back gradually to earlier generations. Don't worry right now about "how far back you can get"—start at home. Interview your parents, aunts, uncles, and grandparents. Seek out old photos. Then you can add information from other sources.

What if nobody in my family knows much about the family's history?

Your family may be larger than you think: ask your close relatives if they have any cousins they haven't spoken to recently, and ask for phone numbers or addresses. If you contact your parents' first cousins, odds are very good that at least one of them will have interesting personal reminiscences, or family photos, or old letters, or the beginnings of a family tree. Often this is information you would never be able to learn in any other way, and far more valuable than anything you could find on the internet.

Finding public records

County courthouses keep deeds, wills, and some marriage records. Each state has a vital records office with birth and death certificates and marriage and divorce records. The federal government has military service files, naturalization records, Social Security applications (which are public for deceased persons), and Native American resources. Most public records are not yet on the internet – but some are. These include the records of the U.S. Census Bureau – a gold mine for genealogists. Census records from 1930 and prior decades are available on several web sites, including www.Ancestry.com.

Using libraries and archives

Visit the county-seat library in the county where your ancestors lived. They may have books of cemetery inscriptions, old city directories, historic newspapers (with obituaries), local histories, maps, and a lot more. (In particular, the Public Library of Cincinnati and Hamilton County has one of the finest genealogical collections in the United States.) The largest collection of genealogical records in the world is the main Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah. Most of this collection is on microfilm, and any roll of microfilm in the vault at Salt Lake can be sent out to a Family History Center near you. (The John Parker Library at the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center is affiliated with this system.) To search the catalog of available microfilms, and to check the locations of Family History Centers, go to www.FamilySearch.org and click on the "FamilySearch Centers" tab.

Putting the pieces together

You'll get the best understanding of the lives of your ancestors by combining oral history with public records, and with the local history of the place where your ancestors lived. So try different avenues of research: talk to an elderly aunt, post a query to an electronic bulletin board, join a local historical society, visit your state archives, place flowers on an ancestor's grave. The more you look, the more you will see. Remember to keep a record of your work – a simple notebook is fine. Note the dates of interviews with family members, and keep complete citations (author, title, etc.) for books and articles you consult. And if you want to use a computer program to keep track of your data, you can download – for free – a program called "Personal Ancestral File" from www.FamilySearch.org.

Each family has many stories

What will you discover? Well, since you have four grandparents, eight great-grandparents, sixteen great-great grandparents, and so on, there are a lot of potential stories. A few of these people may have been prominent in their communities. Some you will have trouble finding out anything about. And the odds are good that a few of them made some bad life decisions and lived lives of great disappointment, even tragedy. Try to respect them all. Because after a while, we realize that we do not honor our ancestors by trying to "get" impressive ancestors who will reflect well on us. We honor our ancestors by learning to live in a way that reflects well on them.

Sage Advice from Our Elders (from a Facebook post)

Your fences need to be horse-high, pig-tight and bull-strong.
Keep skunks and bankers at a distance.
Life is simpler when you plow around the stump.
A bumble bee is considerably faster than a John Deere tractor.
Words that soak into your ears are whispered... not yelled.
Meanness don't just happen overnight.
Forgive your enemies; it messes up their heads.
Do not corner something that you know is meaner than you.
It don't take a very big person to carry a grudge.
You cannot unsay a cruel word.
Every path has a few puddles.
When you wallow with pigs, expect to get dirty.
The best sermons are lived, not preached.
Most of the stuff people worry about, ain't never gonna happen anyway.
Don't judge folks by their relatives.
Remember that silence is sometimes the best answer.
Live a good and honorable life, then when you get older and think back, you'll enjoy it a second time.
Don't interfere with something' that ain't bothering you none.
Timing has a lot to do with the outcome of a rain dance.
If you find yourself in a hole, the first thing to do is stop diggin'.
Sometimes you get, and sometimes you get got.
The biggest troublemaker you'll probably ever have to deal with, watches you from the mirror every morning'.
Always drink upstream from the herd.
Good judgment comes from experience, and a lotta that comes from bad judgment.
Lettin' the cat outta the bag is a whole lot easier than puttin' it back in.
If you get to thinking' you're a person of some influence, try ordering' somebody else's dog around.
Live simply, love generously, care deeply, speak kindly, and enjoy the ride.
Don't pick a fight with an old man. If he is too old to fight, he'll just shoot you!

Bibliography
Missouri's Black Marriages

Below is a working list of Missouri counties for which books/indexes have been published listing black marriages that began being officially recorded with county Recorder of Deeds offices in 1865. If you don't see a county listed, contact the specific county Recorder of Deeds and inquire if they a) know of any published indexes; and b) if their county kept black and white marriages in separate or integrated books.

Check the Mid-Continent Public Library's catalog for pertinent books. Search "Missouri African American marriages."

Boone	929.377829 / 977.829 B281bar
Buchanan	977.813 B8513
Calloway	977.8 B613P
Cooper	929.377851
Jackson	977.841 C941
Morgan	977.8 B613P
Polk	977.877 P7592
St.. Charles	977.8 C719
Saline	977.847 B734

Do you have African-American ancestors who may have either lived or passed through these counties and recorded their marriages? It might be worth a look.

If you know of other Missouri or Kansas black marriage indexes, please let us know so we may share an update to this bibliography. E-mail: david.jackson@orderlypackrat.com
